About Us

Houses and Barns by John Libby has been designing and building authentic, heirloom-quality structures in Maine for more than 35 years. Master builder John A. Libby founded his company under the philosophy that delivering the highest possible quality at maximum value is the only way to get the job done.

John started out in the mid-70s dismantling and revitalizing classic barns. With every barn he dissected, John gained a greater appreciation for the timeless craftsmanship and intricate joinery that enabled the centuries-old shelters to endure.

Today, our team uses the latest technologies paired with the same traditional skills and design techniques he mastered through restoration to craft high-quality, low-maintenance custom houses and barns. Every structure is built to last.

We are dedicated to building energy-efficient, environmentally-sensitive structures. Our AIA-, LEED-Accredited Professional architect is experienced in designing homes and specialty buildings that are aesthetically pleasing and sustainable.

Our Promise to You

Designing and building a custom structure is one of life's most significant investments and a very emotional undertaking. Houses and Barns by John Libby delivers a positive and rewarding experience from start to finish.

We take the time to educate you on every step of the process and what is possible within your budget. When it comes to making important decisions, we make sure you have all the specifics you need to consider well in advance, in terms of cost, materials, labor, structure and aesthetics. We also stick firmly to the agreed-upon cost: there are no surprises from us.

We offer everything to complete your project under one roof. Our architects and skilled construction crew work together as a team so you won't have to worry about the headaches that can occur when form and function don't match up.

Careful attention to detail ensures a worry-free experience long after our work with you is completed. And, we continue to stand behind our work long after a project is finished.

We always live up to our promises, and we're very proud of the relationships we maintain with our past and present clients.
